What good could possibly result from the success of this raid upon the school officials of Richmond? None, whatever. So the City Council has entire control of the matter of appropriations. At present, we will say no more on this point.

But the probability is that the whole movement would be a total failure if persevered in, as we would fain hope it will not be. When the facts me all brought to light, it will be found that the present trustees of the School Board of Richmond are regularly and lawfully in office, and have not failed to comply with any requirement of the laws which was necessary to give then an indefeasible title to their positions.
